HOW WE CAN HELP

From inception to completion of any project there are likely to be many contractual difficulties. Having the correct advice and taking appropriate action at the right time could have a positive impact on the commercial success of a project.

The types of contract that are entered into will influence the level of risk and outcome of any project. Foremost Consultants can provide advice on contracts that are pending or current, highlighting areas of potential risk and offering advice on how to manage or mitigate those risks throughout.

Many problems can arise once a project commences. Often these are minor but if not addressed properly at the time, can lead to larger problems at a later stage. Foremost can provide commercial management services to oversee projects. This includes identifying areas within a client organisation where improvements could be made such as ensuring proper records are maintained, contractual procedures are followed, e.g. issuing applications on time, issuing proper notices and advising on potential claims and either reviewing, preparing and/or defending these as required.

Where dispute situations do arise, Foremost has the technical and contractual expertise to assist clients in protecting their interests. Our extensive experience will enable us to advise clients on the best strategy to move forward providing claims management and dispute resolution support if this is absolutely necessary.
